“ Brady...oh where do i even begin...lets start by meeting for the first time on Chapman lake when we were 12 & 13 and i was too shy to tell you we went to the same school...fast forward to that night we ran into eachother again at the New Paris Speedway...that night began a 17 year friendship that was something only we could understand...you were THERE for me when i was at my lowest..i wouldnt have gotten through it without you. We had love for eachother only longtime friends know. The matching tattoos we both were supposed to get but only you had the guts to go through with haha :)...seeing it on you one last time is going to ve bittersweet but comforting knowing a piece of me is going with you...maybe now is time i get mine for you...so glad i saved all the letters from you helping keep me positive when i needed a friend the most. Ill be forever grateful for that. You have no idea how much i miss you already B...you are so loved by so many.

“ Still can't believe your gone bro.. I don't even know what to think honestly. You were such a good dude ripped away into a life of pain... An we had some deep 1 on 1 conversations behind them walls... I know this isn't you... But it's to late now - one thing is for certain though - the light you brought I to people's life will never fade. Fly High Homie. Much Love.

“ March 8th 2014 best day of my life, I married my best friend. Over the course of time we have had MANY memories and pictures. Brady Lee you were my entire life, world, heart and soul. I'll always love you. "it's a shepherd" you'd always say. I'm going to miss the "Good morning Mrs. Shepherd" texts. Also knowing NO matter what good, bad, horrible or great we always had each other. I'll see you again one day, wait for me at the gate handsome. forever my beautiful angel!
