“ This memory is of many, many years ago when Sis was maybe 7 and I 5. It was a Saturday morning, a time to sleep in on most days but this being a Saturday it was also a day for cartoons which started at 6 am.

I was watching TV and it had to be a commercial on, I thought what I could do. I seen a pair of Mom's sissors on the night stand and thought I could be a barber. Now I needed a client. I looked around and over by the TV was one of Connie's doll's. Her name was Tammy, a red head with curly hair. We sat down on the floor and we started in.

I was just about finished when Connie came out of her bedroom and ask what I was doing. I showed her, and she had this look on her face as I thought was, "what a beautiful cut". She turned and ran to Mom's bedroom waking her and telling her to come and see what I had done to her doll. Now my thinking of what she had just said was, "she wanted to show Mom what a great job I had done to Tammy.

Mom came out and ask what I had done, so I showed her with a big smile on my face. She picked me up and put me on the couch and told me, "DON'T MOVE OFF THAT COUCH. By now I am starting to get mixed reactions, did she like it or not.

As she headed back to the bedroom she stopped and shut the TV off, and again repeated, DON'T MOVE OFF THAT COUCH. I ask Mom since I couldn't watch TV if I could go back to bed.

I sat on that couch for what seemed like forever. Finally Connie come's out of the bedroom holding Tammy and sat next to me She said to me, "that's alright Tom, her hair will grow back."
