“ I'm so shocked and appalled at these news that I don't really know what to say, it's hard to let someone who meant so much to all of us go, specially when we couldn't all be together to say goodbye the right way but I wanted you boys to know that I'm so so sorry for your loss. We all are...

Grief is a very normative process, there's a word we use here for feeling someone's absence. It's more powerful than just missing something, it's kinda like the perception your heart has that some things you've experienced in your life simply didn't fit in the time that was given to them, so you carry them with you where you go..... i just really want to focus right now on how wonderful she was Lainey was by far one of the nicest people i have ever met, she was capable of a level of kindness that my own comprehension couldn't reach, a good person in every sense of the word. I hope that through celebrating that side of herself we can renew our faith, even when everything else looks corrupted and unfair right now... thinking of her amazing family, of the life she led, and of all the good things she left behind puts a bandage on the flesh of reality.
