“ I think the most recent memory I have is when I got my first "equine" and didn't have a clue about what to do with her. And of course I thought of Uncle Macks with one phone he was there and he taught all I needed to know. He was a great guy

“ Macks was my cousin, whom I only saw when I was a child/adolescent. He and his large family visited northwestern Minnesota where my parents, his Uncle Dean and Aunt Lovena, had our farm near Thief River Falls. That was a very memorable visit, cheek to jowl, and certainly not quiet at all. The incessant farm work, except for milking, was put off so we could laugh and frolic together. The grownups were much too busy to supervise with their usual rigor, so we kids had a real blast running around the woods, roaming and playing. Out of all that bunch I remember our age-mates the best--Nancy, David, and Macks. When we made a return visit to Indiana the next year, my 3 brothers John, Ralph, Ray, and I enjoyed romping in his territory. Farm life was more full of work than play, so these were wonderful, unforgettable interludes. I hope he went on to have a happy and productive life and that all who mourn him have equally dear memories.
