“ Well... I will never forget "Grandpa's whiskey drinking brother"... I've called him that since I was a little girl and I'm not even sure how that got started! :) I saw Uncle Marvin a lot at my Grandma and Grandpa's house while I was growing up and will always cherish those memories. You'll be missed, Uncle Marvin!

“Death ends a life, not a relationship.”
-Mitch Albom

My Grandpa Marvin was and remains to be the best damn card player I've known. There are numerous wishes I have regarding him and our time together. I wish for more time just like anyone else, and I wish I would have taken the opportunity to learn more from him. However, these wishes are selfish. There is little I or anyone else can do when it comes to the passing of time.

The fact of the matter is that I did not get to see my grandpa as much as I would have liked. All though our times together were few and far between. I know that I will always remember him. Like the impression a stamp leaves on a piece of paper: The paper grows yellow and discolored with the passing of time, but the ink upon it remains clearly visible for all to see. Just as his impression has been made upon all of us.
